The AT&T Cyber Security Conference is an annual day-long conference offered by AT&T's Chief Security Office to help its business customers, large and small, better manage the increasingly complex and critically important security of their IT networks and assets.

Zuk's session is titled, "Re-Invent and Simplify Your Network Security to Break the Cycle of Cyberattacks," and will discuss how to stop sophisticated cyber attacks that threaten enterprise networks, applications, data and devices.

QUOTE:

- Zuk commented: "Battling cyberattacks today requires a new systematic and thorough approach that safely enables business operations and delivers application, user and content visibility and control. Only a purpose-built next-generation security platform can deliver on this promise and break the cycle of attacks."
